The Raafidah Say the Blood of Ahlus-Sunnah is Halaal

The Raafidah Say the Blood of Ahlus-Sunnah is Halaal; there is no astonishment in this; for they believe that Ahlus-Sunnah are disbelievers who will remain in the Fire for eternity. So it is not astonishing that they consider their blood to be permissible. And they affirm this in their books explicitly, not implicitly. Rather, they textualize devilish schemes with which to kill the Sunnee and conceal traces of the crime. On the authority of Daawud ibn Farqad who said:

“I said to Aboo Abdullaah, upon him be peace: ‘What do you say about killing the Naasib?’ He said: His blood is permissible. However, I fear for you. So if you are able to cause a wall to collapse upon him or drown him in water so that no one will see you, then do so.”¹

Another one of them transmitted this wherein the Raafidee was boasting of a historical incident wherein a Raafidee murdered 500 men from Ahlus-Sunnah, then the amount of the Kafaarah (expiation) was adjudicated which was obligated upon him by way of a Fatwaa from the Imaam; not because he has killed, but because he did not seek permission! The blood-money was made to be lower than the blood-money of a dog or a goat; and that they (the dog and the goat) are better than the Sunnee (according to the Raafidah)!! Ni’matullaah Al-Jazaa’iree said:

“In the narrations (it is mentioned) that ‘Alee ibn Yaqteen, who is the minister of Ar-Rasheed, gathered within his prison a group of opposers, and he was from the most elite of the Shee’ah. He ordered his slaves and they made the roof of the prison collapse upon the inmates so they all died; and they were around 500 men. He wanted to be free of the burden of their blood, so he sent a slave boy to the Imaam Al-Kaadhim, upon him be peace, and he wrote to him a response saying: ‘had you had come to me before you killed them there would not be anything upon you from their blood. Since you did not come to me then the expiation for every man you killed from them with that of the goat; and the goat is better than them; so look at this expensive blood money which does not compare to the blood money of their little brother; the game-dog. For his blood money is twenty Dirhams. Nor (does it compare to the) blood money of their big brother; the Jew or the Majoosee; for it is 800 Dirhams; and their state in the Hereafter is more lowly and more insignificant.’²

WHO WOULD DARE SUPPORT OR UNITE WITH SUCH A VILE PEOPLE?!
